Presents the plants, animals, seallife, and landscape of Maine, from A to Z.

This charming bug family (mama is a ladybug and papa is a daddy longlegs) share a day in Bug City, where they go shopping (for calico moths and velvet ants, of course) and visit the zoo (with rhinoceros beetles and ant lions). The bug family goes to work, cleans house, goes shopping, and enjoys a parade and the zoo. Children of all ages will be entranced by these bright colorful illustrations—a monarch butterfly riding a goldbug coach pulled by horseflies—and familiar end-of-day activities like dinner and bedtime where "only glowworms and the lightning bugs light up the darkness with their small lights." Ipcar's flamboyant, four-color illustrations make for an amusing and quirky book in which children can also learn to identify many different kinds of insects. Ipcar was a well-known artist of the WPA-era and also illustrated a number of other children's books. Ipcar's works are now in the permanent collections of museums such as the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, and the Brooklyn Museum in New York. She is also represented in the leading art museums of Maine, as well as in many corporate and private collections throughout the country.

Take a journey to the bottom of the sea with the gentle merman farmer who tends fanciful fields of sea cucumbers and sea beans with the help of his two sea horses. He must defend his cowfish and sea hens from fierce sea lions and tiger sharks, and free any sea creatures caught in traps or nets dropped from above. Legendary artist Dahlov Ipcar brings this enchanting undersea world to life with her vibrant illustrations and clever transformation of a traditional farmer's tasks to a deep sea setting.

Looking out her window on Christmas Eve, the author introduces the numbers from one to twelve as she spies birds and animals nestled in the boughs of an evergreen tree.

*Features illustrations that originally appeared in the following books: Hardscrabble harvest, One horse farm, The cat at night, Black and white, Bright barnyard, Brown cow farm, The land of flowers, Lobsterman, Wild and tame, I like animals, and The wild whirlwind"—T.p. verso.

Big Betty is the one horse on the farm, and she works hard all year long at the different jobs which need doing on a farm, until the day a tractor takes over.

When grandfather was a little boy, the world was full of horses: pulling fancy carriages, galloping in front of a stage coach and charging into battle. But to keep you from feeling sad because the world is no longer full of horses, Dahlov Ipcar also shows you where they are this minute—because people love them. They can be found in the West being ridden by cowboys, on racetracks being ridden by jockeys and even on merry-go-rounds being ridden by kids like you!

A mother makes her little boy a quilt covered with jungle trees, flowers and animals. Every night the little boy looks at all the animals and trees and when he gets to the end of the quilt he sees that the animals are all sleeping.

A young boy scatters golden kernels of corn to feed the birds of the barnyard, and watches in delight as the birds of the farm parade before him to get to their meal. From fat speckled hens, to drakes with black velvet heads, even his runaway white rabbits, they all join the feasting throng. The little calico cat watches the birds with hunger and fierce longing, but she knows the birds are off limits. The shifty brown rats she spies, however, are fair game!

Wild animals including the flamingo, panther, and kangaroo introduce each letter of the alphabet. On board pages.
