What is the Jurassic Coast? The Jurassic Coast begins in Exmouth, East Devon, and continues for 95 miles to Old Harry Rocks, near Swanage, Dorset. It is England's only natural World Heritage Site, and was inscribed by UNESCO in 2001 for the outstanding universal value of its rocks, fossils and landforms.

Summary The Dinosaur Coast. You only need to let your imagination fly and cast your gaze to where gigantic beings trod millions of years ago. This simple action carries the traveller back through time and space to a coastal land that was then populated by dinosaurs. Villaviciosa and Colunga are two coastal boroughs in eastern Asturias known for their beaches, cider and heritage, but also for the footprints of these prehistoric creatures.
